Brief description of the Research Project, including objectives and results:

In its primary role of promoting and disseminating scientific knowledge, CEJEIA fosters a research culture of high scientific standards, with national and international impact, while seeking to maintain a constant connection with society. In the development of its diverse activities, the Center particularly values and promotes good scientific practices, based on fundamental principles such as scientific ethics, integrity and responsibility; maximum quality and impact of research; open science; engagement with society; efficient and inclusive knowledge; and collaboration with other similar institutions, both in Portugal and abroad. The main areas of focus for the 2025/29 period will be as follows: 1. Defense of the rule of law and citizenship: combating corruption and digital threats to personality rights; 2. Political representation, historical perspective and its dynamics; 3. Law, politics and transnational security; 4. Biolaw and bioethics; 5. Risk society and its legal, economic and environmental effects; 6. New ideology of labour law; 7. Criminal law and new forms of crime; 8. Transdisciplinary implications of the Portuguese Diaspora.
